§ 6 of the Constitution ("Membership")

There are three types of members as follows:

1. National homeopathic organizations and institutions ("institutional members").
2. Physical persons that are physicians, veterinary surgeons, dentists and pharmacists with a full medical, veterinary, dental or pharmaceutical qualification of a State University or any other licensing authority duly recognized by a government of the country in which they practice and who have had special education in homeopathy and hold any kind of diploma recognized by the association ("individual full members").
3. All persons with qualifications recognized nationally, who have undertaken homeopathic training recognized by the LMHI, such as medical students, chemists and all persons, who are licensed health care providers, such as naturopaths, nurse practitioners, physician's assistants, and, generally, persons and institutions who by their profession or activities can contribute to homeopathy, such as scientists, researchers, authors, research institutes, charity organizations, patient organizations may become associate members of the association ("associate members").

Admission to membership is decided by a two-thirds majority of the International Council in attendance.

The membership terminates upon withdrawal, expulsion, or death. The withdrawal is only possible to the end of year. The withdrawal must be presented to International Council in writing according to a time limit of four weeks.

§ 7 of the Constitution ("Membership Contributions")

All members pay annual fees. The International Council fixes the rate of the annual fees for each category of member.

Members that do not effect the payment of the annual fee lose their voting right and may be removed from the association by decision of a simple majority of the Executive Committee. Before the resolution terminating membership is adopted the member must have the opportunity to present his/her case.

§ 2 of the Procedures ("Membership")

Any person who wishes to become an individual member must apply in writing to the General Secretary through the National Vice-President of his country or nation. He must complete the forms prepared by the General Secretary and must be sponsored by two individual members from his country or nation. The National Vice-President must forward the application to the General Secretary within one month.

Persons who are members of an LMHI institutional member are exempted from this procedure as per section 1 above.
