The New Year started off on a optimistic note with homeopathy being televised nationally and internationally through the North American Stock Exchange NASDAQ, which has the largest global electronic trading volume, having requested the President of the American Medical College of Homeopathy, Todd Rowe to ring the closing bell for 2010.

Also present were the President of the American Institute of Homeopathy [AIH], Todd Hoover; Ron Whitmont, Associate Professor of the New York Medical College; and Ron Dushkin, President of the New York Homeopathic Medical Society. http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=F9FSqudFOe4

After a task of 7 years, in April 2011 the American College of Homeopathy was licensed by the state of Arizona to regulate and license homeopathic physicians. It is the first of its kind in the USA since the early 1900s.

The Hahnemann Monument in Washington, DC was finally renovated and rededicated in September 2011 by Sandra Chase and Todd Hoover.

The American Institute of Homeopathy has agreed to collaborate with the Integrative Health Care Practitioners Consortium [IHPC] http://ihpc.info/ as a member of their board.

The AIH would be directly supporting their efforts in the hope to promote homeopathic medicine as an effective and cost-efficient medical practice in the U.S.

Janet Kahn, PhD, Past Executive Director of IHPC, has been appointed by President Obama to the Advisory Group on Prevention, Health Promotion and Integrative and Public Health. This Advisory Group is charged with advising an inter-agency cabinet level council of 17, chaired by the Surgeon General, on "…lifestyle-based chronic disease prevention and management, integrative health care practices, and health promotion."

A new study released by Iris Bell, MD, et al. in October 2011 at the University of Arizona depicts EEG changes by PULSATILLA and SULPHUR. http://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S1475491611000579 EEG alpha offers an objective biomarker of remedy effects for future studies and potential method for distinguishing time-dependent effects of specific remedies and remedy potencies from one another.

Physicists at Northwestern University in Boston published research suggesting that single-celled bacteria, like E. Coli, might communicate using radio waves. This backs up the research of the Nobel Laureate Luc Montagnier's 2009 research. Montagnier's work gave credence to the basic principles of homeopathy by validating that ultra-high dilutions can have biological effects and that water can retain a "memory" of the substance with which it has been in contact. "Today's findings put Montagnier's work, and homeopathy's efficacy, back in the realm of reality," wrote Sebastian Anthony. ["Bacteria Might Communicate Using Radio Waves," Extreme Tech.com, 26 April 2011].

United States Secretary of Health and Human Services Kathleen Sebelius spoke on health care issues before the National Press Club on 6 April 2010. When asked on her view of alternative healing methods, she replied….“I think our comparative effectiveness research will continue to look at a variety of alternatives for expensive care, whether or not earlier interventions or more homeopathic therapies or a variety of choices are ones that really do lead to better health out-comes at a lower cost, and I think those are often consumer choices and also wise health care choices.” [22 April 2010. the Intergrator Blog, theintergratorblog.com]

Rite Aid, one of the largest pharmacies in the USA reports that it plans to remodel 500 of its stores, “introducing a new format that includes more organic foods and homeopathic medicines.” [The Associated Press, Business News, 7 April, 2011]

On 30 March 2011, the The Dr. Oz Show, watched by some 3 million TV viewers, ran a short, positive segment on homeopathy.
